Opposition to Childhood Vaccine Mandates on the Rise, More Parents Say They Want the Right to Choose

A growing number of parents oppose vaccine mandates as a precondition for public school attendance, and interest among adults in receiving COVID-19 booster shots is waning, according to a national poll by the Kaiser Family Foundation (KFF).

The results of the latest KFF COVID-19 Vaccine Monitor survey, released today, show more than one-third (35%) of parents now believe they should be the ones to decide whether their children receive a slate of childhood vaccines.

The poll encompassed a nationally representative sample of 1,259 adults who were interviewed between Nov. 29 and Dec. 8. According to The New York Times, the KFF is a "nonpartisan health care research organization."

"It's unfortunate that it took a wave of injuries and deaths from vaccines that never should have been released into the market — much less mandated — to draw long-overdue attention to the issue of vaccine safety," said Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., chairman and chief litigation counsel for Children's Health Defense.

Kennedy told The Defender:

> "This latest poll is encouraging for those parents, physicians and scientists who for decades have been calling for an investigation into the relentless promotion by FDA, CDC and Big Pharma of inferior medical products without rigorous safety testing.
> "As more parents begin to question the forced, routine administration of vaccines on healthy children, perhaps we will move closer to protecting children and holding vaccine makers and government agencies accountable for the harm these products cause."

26% of unvaccinated parents today: 'Risks of childhood vaccines for measles, mumps, and rubella outweigh the benefits'

According to the KFF poll, 65% of parents of children under age 18 "think healthy children should be required to be vaccinated to attend public schools."

This represents an 11 percentage point decline from an October 2019 Pew Research Center poll showing 76% of parents supported public school vaccine mandates.

More than one-third of parents surveyed (35%) "now believe parents should be able to decide not to vaccinate their children, up from 23% in 2019."

BUY NOW: Ed Dowd's Must-Read Book — "Cause Unknown"

The poll also revealed declines in support for specific vaccines. For instance, 71% of respondents said "healthy children should be required to get vaccinated for MMR in order to attend public schools" compared with 82% who supported the MMR vaccine mandate for healthy children in 2019.

Nearly 3 in 10 parents (28%) said parents should be able to choose whether their children receive the MMR vaccine, compared with 16% in the 2019 poll.

And a similar percentage (26%) of unvaccinated parents responded that the "risks of childhood vaccines for measles, mumps, and rubella outweigh the benefits."

A smaller decline was noted in the percentage of adults (85%) who felt the benefits of childhood MMR vaccination outweigh the risk. This represented a three-percentage-point decline from the 2019 Pew Research Center poll (88%).

These declines were driven by increased vaccine "skepticism" and a growing movement toward parental choice, on the part of Republicans and Republican-leaning independents — 44% of whom responded that parents should have a choice about whether or not their children receive the MMR vaccine, up from 20% in 2019.

Only 11% of Democrats provided the same response.

Moreover, only 56% of Republicans and Republican-leaning independents said "healthy children should be required to be vaccinated to attend public schools," a decline of 23 percentage points compared to 2019.

A similar divide was apparent among respondents in reference to their COVID-19 vaccination status. While 83% of vaccinated respondents said healthy children should be required to be vaccinated in order to attend public schools, 63% of unvaccinated parents said parents should instead decide.

'Tepid' interest in COVID 'boosters' and flu vaccine

Interest in the updated COVID-19 booster is "tepid," according to the KFF poll, which showed only 1 in 5 adults (22%) surveyed said they have received the updated bivalent booster and an additional 16% said they plan to receive it "as soon as possible."

However, 12% of respondents said they would "wait and see" before deciding whether to get the new booster, 13% said they would get it only if required and 9% said they would "definitely not" get it.

An additional 27% were unvaccinated or only "partially" vaccinated, which means they are not eligible to get the booster.

Interest in the bivalent booster was highest among adults 65 and older (39%) and Democrat voters (38%), though both figures fall significantly short of a majority. Conversely, only 12% of Republicans and 11% of young adults under 30 said they had received a dose of the updated booster.

Also, 36% of "fully vaccinated" adults 65 and older said they don't think they need the updated booster, while a "similar percentage," according to KFF, said they did not think the benefit of the updated booster was worth it.

Overall, fewer than half of parents of children under 18 said their child has received the updated booster or is likely to do so.

Combined with children who have not been vaccinated and who are therefore ineligible for the booster, 58% of parents of 12- to 17-year-olds and 70% of parents of 5- to 11-year-olds responded in this manner.

Republicans and Republican-leaning independents, even if vaccinated, expressed skepticism toward the updated booster, with 64% stating they do not think they need it, and 61% saying they did not believe the benefit was worth it.

Even among Democrats, a majority (51%) said they were too busy or hadn't had the time to get the updated booster, indicating it was not a high priority for them.

Even in the face of a so-called "tripledemic" of COVID-19, flu and RSV (respiratory syncytial virus) this fall and winter, and despite the majority of parents saying they are worried their children will get sick from RSV (56%, and 73% of parents of children under the age of 5), only 34% of parents said their child has gotten a flu shot this season.

Parents' rights movement growing in prominence

According to The Times, "The shift in positions appears to be less about rejecting the shots than a growing endorsement of the so-called parents' rights movement."

Dr. Sean O'Leary, chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics' Committee on Infectious Diseases told The Times:

> "The talking point that has been circulated is the concept of taking away parents' rights. And when you frame it that simply, it's very appealing to a certain segment of the population."

O'Leary said he worried that the parental rights movement might slow down compliance with state-mandated childhood immunization schedules, telling The Times "We do have a global dip in vaccine coverage. So this is not a time to be considering a rollback of these laws."

All vaccines are poison. Vaccines create disease.

Anyone who has studied the topic in depth knows that every aspect of the "vaccine story", starting back in the 1800's up to present, is complete fraud. Vaccines have done nothing but harm people and line the pockets of the medical establishment.

Vaccines are barbaric- all of them.

There has never been a product of any kind so filled with historical misinformation, purposeful deception and outright fraud. The belief that injecting synthetic chemicals made by habitually criminal companies who profit from perpetual disease somehow produces health is not only ridiculous and unproven— it is a foundational teaching of a dangerous religious cult that western medicine has become.

From their inception to today's mRNA monstrosities vaccines have done nothing but cause massive and systemic harm to the human biological system.

Furthermore the biggest fraud in history might be the medical industrial complex itself.

For the past 100 years and more they've been claiming credit for things that builders

Well said! Even if it weren't for all the evidence that vaccines are not safe or effective, any normal sane adult with a heart would be able to recognize how barbaric it is to hold down an infant or small child and jab a series of needles into her thighs while she screams for mercy. It's no wonder torture like what transpired at Abu Ghraib was acceptable to the US government. They've been doing it to children for years disguised as "health care".

Saw a study today. Done over 19 years using the CDC own data. the flu vaccine over all those years was about 13% effective. And the damage caused was unbelievable. On Greenmedinfo. I took 1 of these jabs in the 70's. Will never take another. I honestly believe getting the flu every few years is a good thing if you keep your immune system healthy. Look at it as Natures greatest cleanse,. All the stuff that gets eliminated, respiratory and digestive. Fun? Not in the least but go with it, take a few days off of work, fast and sleep. Nature has a way of getting rid of the bad stuff and vaccines have a way of adding more. Wake Up!

There's a lot of evidence to suggest that these illnesses, especially the common childhood diseases that these injections are supposedly designed to prevent, are actually natural and beneficial processes of biological development and growth, and that suppressing them is extremely harmful in the long term.

It's how the immune system learns to work! When I was a kid on the farm we used to play barefoot in the stockyard. Fast forward 20 years and I invited my sister in law to bring my nephew 5 yrs old, over to see my newborn colt. He reach out and touched it and his mother took his arm and marched him to the car and did the hand sanitizer thing. He was the sickliest kid I ever knew.

The flu shot maybe the most damaging of the entire lot, outside of the new platform COVID injections.

I believe the only reason we get the flu is because vaccinated humans are incubators for disease spread.

Historian Ralph Moody said around 1911 that he never got sick, except for the measles.

Back then vaccines were few and far between, and they weren't making flu shots.

Medical experimentation and torture is part of America's DNA. Look at what was done to the natives; slavery and the origins of gynecology; experiments on soldiers; nuclear testing on actual human beings; Tuskegee; AIDS drug tests on orphans; and so on. The real history of this country is one of pure horror, only redeemed by the heroic resistance of average people and workers fighting for basic rights and freedoms against the most violent, remorseless efforts of the ruling class and their armed thugs.

I agree with everything you said and would add from my perspective the whole concept of vaccines, the idea our immune system needs this help, is an insult to God. God made our immune system and mankind shouldn't be playing around with it.

All the illnesses of the past had common sense explanations that merely required sanitation, clean and adequate food and avoiding toxins.

The 1918 Spanish flu wasn't the flu at all, it was our idiotic military injecting all the soldiers with a bacterial experimental vaccine that caused all the illnesses.

Perhaps if the powers that be did not get so greedy, kept the "schedule" reasonable instead of trying to create & mandate a vaccine for everything... people may not have gotten the 'wake up' call. Greed eventually makes people say enough is enough.

When they started with vaccinating against what I consider "wimp" disease ...measles, mumps (autism anyone?) and chickenpox, Even polio caused more cases than it cured. I saw this was nothing more than a make pharma rich BS, Then add in the flu, shingals and now that dreaded less than 1% kill rate global killer Covid. They flooded the streets just waiting to be jabbed by the EUA, not tested jab. When do people wake up and realize they ARE the test subjects? All you have to do is look at the money to see this Plandemic was just that. PLANNED to trap the fearful and gain control. And if that isn't enough proof to you to realize you got snookered? read the obituaries.

We either have body autonomy or we don't, there is no negotiating it. As soon as they mandate medical interventions then our right over our bodies is gone. Using childhood vaccines as a way to advance mandates is just the start it will not stop and before we know it we will have no right to refuse treatment, any treatment. This is the time for parents to make a decision and demand control of what is being put into the bodies of their children. Once governments take away a small freedom it gives then permission to demand more compliance. Vaccines are a medical intervention and we have been encouraged to minimise risks. The governments sales pitch is that they are so low risk let us push 6,7 or 8 of them into a tiny body all the one time. Deplorable practice.

The high rate of Autism in children has been associated with the MMR. So it's interesting how the vaccine they consider the most important could be one of the worst of the lot.

It's nice to see people coming to the realization that parents should choose, and to see them questioning vaccines but it's also disappointing the consensus against them isn't much greater.

If there was only some way to get them to read 'Turtles all the way Down - Vaccine Science and Myth.' Maybe that would give them the epiphany they so desperately need end all vaccine mandates.

Lets hope they choose not to accept this poison for a virus that never was its what i call the great evil lie Official Government reports proving COVID Vaccination causes immense damage to the immune system reminiscent of acquired immunodeficiency syndrome,
Official European mortality data proving excess deaths among children have increased by 552% ever since the European Medicines Agency approved the Covid-19 vaccine for children,
Secret data published by the Centers for Disease Control confirming at least 118k children & young adults have died suddenly in the USA since the Covid-19 vaccine roll-out, and
UK Government data confirming Covid-19 vaccinated children are up to 137x more likely to die than unvaccinated children,
Is it time authorities finally admitted we have now witnessed more than enough "coincidences" to confirm that Covid-19 vaccination is the most likely cause of children suddenly dying of Strep A infection due to the immense damage it does to the immune system for a start

For someone who is still trying to convince themself about how unnecessary vaccines may be and their link to chronic conditions who happens to be an average webdeveloper/data scraper, where can I go to pull down the evolution of every nation's vaccine schedule? Recently I'm a bit stuck on Japan. Which from articles I hit along the way, suggest they are an opt-in country. As such, if there is any link to chronic conditions I'd be curious what there schedule is, as well as their rates of chronic disease. I was annoyed to hit an article that had Japan's rate of 'the' disease somewhere below and above the US's. I'm new to this space so feel free to patronize me in explaining where to get rates and vax schedules.

I used to be a vaccine "believer" until Covid came along. There was no way I was going to take an insane product like the Covid vaccine but the absurd propaganda campaign also got me interested in vaccines in general and well, I'll just sum it up as "Turtles all the way down". But even in my vaccine believer past I found the mandates to be absurd. For the simple reason that... if you really believe that a vaccine is effective as claimed then if someone doesn't want to take it, it's their problem not yours. Duhhh..
